

Test Document for SciRAG

This is a sample scientific document used for testing.
It contains information about Python programming and machine learning applications in scientific research.

Key findings:

- Python is widely used in data analysis
- Machine learning improves research efficiency
- Document retrieval systems help scientists find information

Page 2: Additional Content

This page contains supplementary information about vector embeddings and semantic search capabilities. Vector databases enable efficient similarity search.